Hello! My name is Mr.
Mustonen and I'll be your 7th
grade Ancient World History
Teacher this year!

Let me tell you a bit about myself...

Mr. Mustonen's favorite things!

Ellie and Kirby!

You'll learn more about me later in class
but here are some quick facts to start!

I love baseball! I usually go to at least seven Detroit Tigers games a year. As you can see, I was very sad that I couldn't go to Tigers games
this year...

You'll learn more about me later in class
but here are some quick facts to start!

I love, love, love Star Wars! The movies, the TV shows, the games,
the books, the comics, I love them
all! I even own my own lightsaber.

You'll learn more about me later in class
but here are some quick facts to start!

Whether it's in an art museum, like the picture of me at the right, where I'm at the Detroit Institute of Arts with a Mesopotamian carving over 3,000 years old, or in a book, I love learning about history.

“What's Mesopotamia?” you ask. Don't worry, we'll learn about it this year. It's part of Ancient World History.

For online learning, we'll have two types Synchronous Learning and Asynchronous Learning

Synchronous:

Learning that takes place at the same time! Examples are a Live Teaching Session as a class or small group

Asynchronous:

Learning that takes place at the different times! Examples are independent assignments or group assignments

For online learning, we'll have two types Synchronous Learning and Asynchronous Learning

Synchronous Example:

Ms. Hojeij teaches her 3rd hour a 30 minute lesson on Zoom

Asynchronous Example:

Mrs. McGrath asks her students to complete a fractions assignment on Schoology Ok! So meow you know about two types of learning Synchronous Learning and Asynchronous Learning let's move on to attendance.

I'll keep this simple:

Attendance counts!
Attendance counts!
