

Princess Bear Example

Once upon a time, a beautiful princess was forced to flee from an evil witch. Seeing how difficult it was for the princess to hide, a kind fairy gave her a magical piece of wood. When the princess put the piece of wood in her mouth, she was transformed into a bear. The princess lived as a bear in the forest for two summers. One day, a handsome prince came upon her, and delighted by how friendly she was a bear, he took her home to be his pet. The princess-bear lived comfortably in the courtyard of the prince's palace. One day, she removed the piece of wood from her mouth, as she often did, so that she could clean her teeth. The prince happened to be at the window and suddenly spied a beautiful maiden in the courtyard. He rushed outside, but by the time he arrived, the princess was again a bear. The prince grew sick with love for the maiden as he could not find her anywhere. As a bear, the princess tried to comfort him, and one day, the prince kissed her paw. The princess was so surprised the piece of wood fell from her mouth. The prince realized that she was the maiden. They were immediately married and lived happily ever after.

Fairytales Characteristics:

- Include good and evil characters

Text Evidence:

- Has Magic

Text Evidence:

- Often begins with "Once upon a time" or "There once was..."

Text Evidence:

