

The First Americans

by ReadWorks

The home country of Americans is the United States. Who were the first Americans?

Native Americans were the first Americans. They lived all over North America. They lived in groups.

The groups lived off the land. They grew food. They hunted animals. They made clothes. They built homes.

Later, other people moved to North America. They came from Europe. When they arrived, they found the Native Americans already on the land.

Today, people from all over the world live in the United States. Native Americans live in the United States too.
