Nota cultural

Latin American high schools typically do not sponsor organized sports teams. Students who may want to take a more active part in sports can do so by joining clubs and associations outside of school.

How is this similar to or different from your school sports program?

Nota cultural

In Latin America many teens must introduce their friends to their parents before they go out with them. When inviting a friend out, teens are often expected to tell the friend's parents where they are going and when they will return. While this custom may be changing, it is still common in many places.
